

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for facilitating the display of items. In one embodiment, the display system includes one or more shelving modules with longitudinal braces into which items for display may be securely inserted. Advantageously, the shelving modules and items
5 for display secured thereto may be transposed or substituted with another shelving module containing other display items, without disrupting the positional arrangement of the items displayed. Another embodiment of the display system includes a freestanding support structure designed to accommodate the display of one or more shelving modules. An additional embodiment may include a transportable carrying case for the 10 shelving modules, such as with the display items secured thereto, which provides means for their storage or transport to another display presentation.